Repeat Performance is calling you

By Janet Baker

Sharon and Bob Smith moved from Southern California to be closer to their son and his family who live in the Beaumont Wilshire neighborhood. After settling into a new home only a block from their son, they focused on another goal – opening a children's clothing store. Both left behind school-related careers in California, so a children's store was a natural fit.

Having recently become a great aunt, I welcomed the opening of A Repeat Performance, Kid's Boutique at 4803 NE Fremont in March. They carry a variety of brands you won't find at the mall stores, such as Knuckleheads, a boys clothing brand manufactured across the river in Vancouver,

Bob and Sharon Smith of A Repeat Performance

and Young Color, a Colorado company.

Sharon and Bob carry infant, toddler and children clothes up to size 8 (soon to be extending that to size 10) for both boys and girls. In addition to regular clothes, they have a collection of fairy dresses, complete with wings that no little girl could resist!

Laylahma – earth friendly clothing

By Rita Catapano

One of several new shops opening along Fremont in the past few months is Laylahma at 4759 N.E. Fremont. Laylahma offers natural fiber clothing for men and women. I first noticed the store one day in July when I was taking inventory of the new shops in the neighborhood. I had not done my "new business walk" for a while. I came upon Laylahma and decided to check it out, thinking I might find just the right birthday present for a friend whose party was that very evening. Upon entering the store, I was promptly engaged by owner Joshua Brownstein who gave me the complete tour of the merchandise, as well as the physical space.

Joshua of Laylahma

Most of the offerings are blends of organic cotton, hemp, tencel, and bamboo materials. Yes, that's right "bamboo". I had never heard of bamboo clothing. I was surprised to find that it both looks and feels good. In fact, all the products look and feel good. What makes them even better is that the source materials are not grown using pesticides and the clothing is fabricated in sweat-shop free environments. For now, men's and women's styles are available. Josh plans to add a line of children's clothing by the holidays.

The same eco-consciousness that charac-

Global warming and both sides of Ballot Measure 49

Global Warming: Howard Patterson, a volunteer with the Climate Project, will present a slide show on the science and impact of global warming.

Ballot measure 49: Hear representatives from both sides of this ballot measure which is before Oregon voters in a special election on November 6, 2007. Here is an excerpt from the Oregon Secretary of State's Explanatory Statement of Measure 49:

(www.sos.or.us/elections/nov62007)

"This measure modifies Measure 37 to give landowners who have filed Measure 37 claims the right to build homes as compensation for land use regulations imposed after they acquired their properties...This measure protects farmlands, forestlands, and lands with ground water shortages in two ways.

- First, subdivisions are not allowed on high-value farmlands, forest lands and groundwater –restricted lands. Claimants may not build more than three homes on such lands.
- Second, claimants may not use this measure to override current zoning laws that prohibit commercial and industrial developments, such as strip malls and mines, on land reserved for homes, farms, forests and other uses.

Also, this measure expands homebuilding rights under Measure 37 in two ways.

- First, it extends homebuilding rights to surviving spouses whose claims are not eligible for compensation under Measure 37.
- Second, it allows claimants to transfer their homebuilding rights to new owners, a right not clearly provided by Measure 37. The new owners must exercise their homebuilding rights within 10 years."

Everyone is welcome to attend the Oct 8 general meeting. Please enter the school by the Fremont St. entrance. The meeting is held in Room 140. ■

Autumn greetings!

Hopefully, you have had a great summer!

As I write this message, we are still experiencing warm weather, flowers are in full bloom, and we see many people out on long walks in our beautiful BWNA neighborhood. School is back in session, and it will soon be autumn.

Special thanks to all who attended (approx. 175) and helped make the August 7 annual National Night Out picnic in Wilshire Park a success.

Our fall BWNA program begins with our General Meeting at Beaumont Middle School on October 8. You are invited to come and meet your neighbors and hear guest speakers on topics that include land use measures and the environment. Come and meet Stefanie Adams, our new Crime Prevention Coordinator.

Do you have a topic or issue to discuss, or a suggestion for speakers for our general meetings? Your neighborhood board wants to hear from you!

Looking forward to seeing you at the meeting!

Become a better speaker

By Margaret Marcuson

Do you want to be a better speaker? Develop your leadership skills? Meet some new friends? Toastmasters clubs are places to do all three. Columbia Center Toastmasters meets Saturday mornings from 9:00-10:15 a.m. in the chapel at Rose City Park United Methodist Church, 5830 NE Alameda. http://columbiacenter.freetoasthost.us/index.html

A number of Beaumont Wilshire residents belong to the club, and visitors are welcome at any meeting.

I first joined Toastmasters five years ago, not long after I moved to the neighborhood from Massachusetts. I wanted to meet some people as well as continuing to develop my speaking skills.

The author giving a speech

As a minister who works with clergy who want to be better leaders and churches who want to develop their ministries, I do a lot of speaking. And for many years I preached a sermon every Sunday. But I knew I can get better. I prepare for upcoming talks by practicing at Toastmasters. If the group laughs at a joke, I figure it's safe to tell to another audience. If they tell me they were a little confused by a section of a speech, I know I need to work harder to make myself clear.

A central part of every Toastmasters meeting is evaluation. Everyone who speaks gets a kind but helpful evaluation. "I liked the way you did this, and here is something you might work on," is the usual way comments are given. I appreciate the feedback I get at Toastmasters, and it helps me improve.

Do you have to be an experienced speaker to benefit from Toastmasters? No, not at all. We've had members who have never been in front of a group in their life. Over time, they become more comfortable and less nervous, and begin to feel they can be themselves even in front of an audience. One of my biggest thrills as a Toastmaster is watching people grow as speakers, and become more confident than they ever thought possible. ■

Cat in the Apron Craft Show

By Shannon Swartley

This year's show "Adornment and Provisions for Life with Baby" is on Saturday, October 6th from 10-4 at the Oregon Stamp Society building on NE 33rd Avenue & Alberta Court and is a benefit for the Oregon Food Bank. Attendance is free but shoppers are asked to contribute a non-perishable food item (no glass containers) for donation at the door. As well, many of the vendors will be donating a portion of the day's sales to the Oregon Food Bank.

Cat in an Apron, a cooperative venture, was established in 2006 by three NE Portland residents: Anne Gaber of Firecracker Baby, Marne Nordean of OHenry and Shannon Swartley of Splendid Wares. It was formed to provide an outlet for small, high quality local designers. Their mission is to focus on designers who put their time and energy into their design and product, but may not want to create large quantities of goods that are required for retail sales. This allows the items to be unique, limited editions.

Products for the show are previewed and juried based on the integrity of the design and the inherent beauty and quality of materials. Don't miss this exiting showcase of local designers. ■

Picnickers revel once again

By Helen Koba

The annual National Night Out picnic held in early August was well attended. About 175 people attended and feasted on treats provided by the neighborhood associations, neighbors and local businesses. The association wants to thank the following businesses and individuals for their generous contributions:

- Alameda Cafe
- Alameda Brewhouse
- Beaumont Properties
- Papa Murphys
- A Repeat Performance
- Vestiges Storefront
- Alameda Fitness
- Green Dog Pet Supply
- Bella Wellness
- Andrine de la Rocha of Beaumont Health Care Clinic
- Strada
- Barrett Automotive

Also, thanks to:

Earth H2O - for donating 9 cases of bottled water

Thomas Egleston- Field Services Coordinator-Center for Urban Studies- PSU- for providing recycling receptacles

Portland Parks- providing extra trash cans

Several generous neighbors for donating grills and for cooking

Portland Fire Bureau for the trucks that were open to kids to explore

Wilshire United Methodist Church for tables and chairs and for the church ladies who helped to unload them

And thanks to the three members of the Fighting Instruments of Karma Marching Chamber Band/ Orchestra for the fine music. You can see photos and a video of this year's picnic at http://www.bwna.org and click on photos or video. ■

Saturday and Sunday, October 20 & 21, Studios West of the Willamette, 10-5

Two members of the BWNA artspace group, Jenelle Kathan and Jude Cornwell (aka Judee Moonbeam) will open their studios in Beaumont Wilshire for the annual Portland Open Studios eastside tour, October 13-14th. Jenelle works in glass and Jude in fibre. Their work can be viewed on the BWNA website www.bwna.org, click on "artspace."

You can purchase a Tour Guide and tickets for $15 for two adults (kids free) which include a map, pictures of artists' work and contact information in a calendar format at the following: Art Media stores, New Seasons Market, Powell's Books, Weir's Cyclery and other outlets listed on www.portland-openstudios.com.

There isn't a better way to discover the vitality of Portland than to visit the studios in the neighborhoods that make Portland so vibrant. Discover your own neighborhood and explore new ones. Artists will share with you the secrets of their art--the materials, the tools, the techniques and the ideas that contribute to the creation of paintings, prints, sculptures, textiles, glass, ceramics, and photography. ■ terizes the clothing carries through in the shop design. The floors are bamboo. The walls are painted with earth-clay dye. Even the ceiling incorporates natural fabric and bamboo poles to create the overall look and feel of a natural environment. The end result is a lovely light and airy space.

By the way, I did find a birthday present for my friend and a little something for me too. I recommend you stop by and take a look. I also recommend you take the opportunity to talk with Joshua about the mystery of "Laylahma", the desert planet in a fantasy story he has written. 4759 N.E. The school house rush

By David Whitaker

The Transportation and Land Use Committee is beginning to work with neighbors along NE 37th to address their concerns about vehicle speeding along the street and also the high number of vehicles that travel down the street each day. There have been a number of incidents during the past year where speeding vehicles have hit parked cars.

Now that school is back in session, these neighbors are seeing an increase in the number of vehicles driving along the street. I ride my bike to work each day along NE 37th and a few of the other streets in the vicinity of Beaumont School and am amazed by how many drivers speed down these streets in order to deliver their children to school on time.

It puts a smile on my face to see all of the kids that are walking or biking to school and having such a good time along the way. However, there is concern about their safety around somewhat frenzied parents that are speeding to get their kids to school. I strongly encourage all of you that are driving around the school to slow down and even drive slower than the speed limit. I know it's hard, but you can do it.

Isn't it great to live in such a wonderful neighborhood! ■

Annual mask show

By Brita Gould

If you can't wait until Halloween to experience the color, humor, and mystery of masks, Quirks of Art is offering their first annual mask exhibition starting Wednesday, October 3. Showing through Halloween, Quirks of Art & Furniture will display an array of raku, stoneware, encaustic and mixed media masks by a group of local mask artists. Beaumont Wilshire artist Brita Gould will be showing along with Michelle Gallagher, Connie Trapp, Diane Trapp, Debbie Petricek, Monica Roxburg, and Todd Whitlock.

Quirks of Art & Furniture will host a wine and cheese reception on Saturday, October 13 from 3pm to 6 pm. Come nibble a cracker and chat with the artists on the origins of their ideas and the particulars of their craft. For gallery hours and to preview some work from the show, go to www.quirks-of-art.com. The gallery is located at 1602 N.E. 40th Ave (next to A-Boy parking lot) in the Hollywood District. ■
