Able Body Massage

By Barbara Warren-Sams

Lorraine and Henry Tobeck of Able Body Massage

Able Body Massage Therapy is fairly new to Beaumont Village—its doors opened at 3515 NE 43rd in June 2007—but owners Henry and Lorraine Tobeck are not new to the massage field. Between them, they have nearly forty years of experience as licensed massage therapists (LMTs).

"Massage is often seen only as a technique that helps the body to relax after physical or emotional stress, such as working too long in the garden or a death in the family," says Lorraine. "While our practice offers this kind of Swedish massage, we also deal with more serious problems affecting the muscles, joints, soft tissue, and nervous system."

"Depending on what is needed," adds Henry, "we alleviate problems in the body that require different therapeutic applications and techniques." Some of these techniques include:

Deep tissue—gently works through layers of tissue to reach problem areas

Trigger point—releases sustained contractions in muscles

Update on Beaumont Learning Courtyard

By Jeff Holiman

Proposed courtyard for Beaumont Middle School

Portland Public Schools has placed a temporary moratorium on the installation of rainwater infiltration features until they have in place a district wide maintenance policy. Because of this, the Beaumont Middle School courtyard project group decided to focus on another component of the transformation: seating for outdoor classroom activities.

With the professional assistance of Ecoroofs Everywhere the group is moving forward with design and installation of an outdoor seating facility situated under a small structure with an ecoroof. The engineering is in progress, material list is being compiled and permits were sought in late May. The construction is set for mid-June with installation of ecoroof and cob seating will occur in the fall.

The project group meets at Beaumont Middle School, Room #106 on Tuesdays at 5:45PM. All are welcome. ■

Traffic calming, picnic and work plan

BW Community Meeting
Monday, June 9, 7:30PM
Beaumont Middle School, Room 140

Speaking at the June 9th community meeting at Beaumont Middle School, room 140 at 7:30pm will be Will Stevens, Traffic Calming Program Manager for the City of Portland, Office of Transportation. We have heard from many residents that traffic patterns and flows on the smaller residential streets as well as the main ones such as NE Fremont are a problem and of concern. Come and find out what kind of plans or solutions the City of Portland Traffic Calming Bureau can offer in the way of alleviating some of these concerns.

We also hope you will join us in planning for the National Night Out Picnic, the big festive event held each year on the first Tuesday in August. This year that will be August 5 at Wilshire Park. The board members would like your input and help.

Also on the agenda is the 'action plan' for the neighborhood association for the upcoming year. Hear what the board plans to accomplish and let them know what you think are priorities for the neighborhood in the coming year.

See you June 9th, 7:30 at Beaumont Middle School, NE Fremont at 41st, in room 140. ■

A word from our new president

Al Ellis, BWNA president

Summer is in the air, and for BWNA it signals the beginning of planning for the next 12 months with leadership, including 3 newly-elected board members, an additional Central Northeast Neighbors representative, and a new president and treasurer. The resulting influx of new energy and fresh perspectives can only heighten the effectiveness of our association. In taking on the position of BWNA President, I am both honored by the confidence shown in me and humbled by the breadth and scope of the office.

Fortunately, our veteran vice president, Bill Markwart, has taken me under his steady wing and is providing much-appreciated mentorship. Bill also deserves a thanks for stepping up to serve as interim president the past year following the departure from the neighborhood of former president Albert Kaufman. Under Bill's direction, the board meetings have been run fairly and knowledgeably, and general meetings have been well attended, due to the informative and, occasionally, provocative nature of the topics presented and discussed. Through it all, Bill has remained cool, collected—and bursting with wit and humor. Our neighborhood hats go off to you, Bill! I look forward to working with Bill and the officers and board members in the coming year to help enhance our already vibrant and beautiful neighborhood.

Although I've only been an active participant in BWNA for the past few years, my connection with the Beaumont Wilshire neighborhood and Wilshire Park spans over 30 years. However, I must confess up front to initially entering Oregon via California. Born in San Francisco and raised in San Carlos (south of S.F. on The Peninsula), my introduction to Oregon came as a college student at Willamette University in Salem, where I met my wife, Peggy, to whom I've been married since 1970. We both became teachers—she an elementary teacher and reading specialist in Vancouver's Evergreen District, and I (mostly) a high-school teacher of Russian language and social studies in the Portland School District. We bought our first house on 49th, just down the street from Stanich's, and began our family (two daughters) there. During those years, we loved going to Wilshire Park for picnics with friends & kids, and in 1990 we made the move to our current home, located right across the street from the park! And what a delight it has been to watch the park evolve over the years into the amply-lighted, family-friendly, athlete-friendly, dog owner-friendly neighborhood recreation center. This is the very kind of progress that BWNA strives to promote and facilitate through its organization of volunteer efforts and distribution of monetary assistance.

Since my retirement in 2000, after 30 years of teaching in Portland, I have worked as an adjunct instructor in the Graduate Education Department at PSU, supervising student teachers. I'm also and an officer, in Portland's Russian sister city association (Portland- Khabarovsk Sister City Association). While continuing to serve in the sister city association, I have called it quits at Portland State, and that has opened up time for me to devote to BWNA—hence my decision to allow myself to be nominated for the presidency of the association last month.

Recently I worked on a BWNA committee to organize April's "Taste of Beaumont," an event that is purposely scheduled each year on the evening of the general meeting devoted to electing neighborhood residents to fill board vacancies. On behalf of the board, I want to thank the parents and teachers who went out of their way to assist us at Beaumont Middle School, the Beaumont M.S. band for an inspired concert, and especially the chefs from neighborhood restaurants who volunteered their time and culinary expertise to make this evening both enjoyable and tasty. Recently, in thanking the restaurants personally, I received a written reply from Karen Stahr of Ottoman Klasik: "So glad the event was a success...My husband said he saw many of our customers there...We look forward to participating in more community events with BWNA...Many thanks for your thoughtful message."

That's great to hear, and the BWNA leadership will work to build on this year's success. I encourage you to attend our next general meeting on the evening of Monday, June 9th, at Beaumont Middle School, and look forward to hearing your ideas on what BWNA should include in its goals and objectives for the coming months.

–Al Ellis

Coyotes in Beaumont Wilshire

Coyote or canis latrans

By Marili Green Reilly

You may have heard about Portland's coyote problems, but did you know they have been spotted in Beaumont Wilshire? I wouldn't have believed it myself until I saw a pair of coyotes in our yard on Alameda Ridge on May 8. The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife says coyotes look for green "pockets" in the city where there is a source of water. Apparently, no city agency is currently keeping a record of sightings.

Coyotes live in burrows, under downed trees, or in culverts, and are very opportunistic. They prefer small rodents, but will eat birds, unsecured garbage, compost, fruits and vegetables and the occasional free-roaming pet. Coyotes mate for life, and a brochure published by Audubon Society says they have a "compensatory, density-dependant breeding rate" - the more humans intercede to remove or kill urban coyotes, the more they will reproduce and fill in the vacated territories.

In Oregon it is illegal to relocate a coyote. Traps are dangerous to pets and other wildlife, so the best defense against these predators is to discourage their presence. Keep garbage cans and compost bins securely covered and pick up fallen fruit. Remove brush that will afford cover for coyotes and places for rats to breed. If you see a coyote in your yard, make a lot of noise to scare it off. Never feed them.

Although generally not dangerous to humans, coyotes may consider your pet a tasty meal. Our visitors left behind a lot of what appeared to be cat fur, and although our own cat is a different color, she hasn't been home since. To keep your cat or small dog from meeting a similar fate, keep it indoors from dusk until dawn, when coyotes are most active, and don't leave pet food outdoors.

Myofascial release—works on the membranes that cover muscles; lessens spread of scar tissue

Myoskeletal therapy—releases adhesions and realigns skeletal structure

Massage therapy is a second career for both Tobecks. Lorraine worked in banking for twelve years, and Henry in construction for twenty before becoming LMTs. The Tobecks believe they are the only married couple in Portland who has had a full-time massage therapy practice for 16 years.

Henry also specializes in sports massage that relieves tension created by excessive activity or muscle injury and involves focused interactions between client and therapist. "Two years ago I worked with Cirque du Soleil performers during their stay in Portland," notes Henry.

During her sessions, Lorraine includes Chinese Facial Massage, which uses acupressure points on the face to tone and relax the muscles. She has advanced training and experience working with clients who have Temporal Mandibular Joint (TMJ) problems and fibromyalgia.

Able Body is located in a comfortable, air-conditioned house with two therapy offices. Henry and Lorraine can be reached at 503.239.4785, 3515 NE 43rd (north of Fremont behind Tuk-Tuk restaurant), or visit their web site at www.ablebodymassagetherapy.net ■

Beaumont Artspace welcomes new artist

Beaumont artist Gay Mitchell painting

By Rita Catapano

"Welcoming" is how Gay Mitchell finds her new neighborhood and fellow artists in the Beaumont Wilshire Artspace, a group of local artists who either live or work in the Beaumont Wilshire Neighborhood. Gay and Chuck Mitchell moved to the neighborhood in July 2007 from West Linn. Their two children were grown and out of the house, and they were looking for a different lifestyle.

Since moving into the neighborhood, Gay has found a job teaching art at the Portland International Community School (located in the Grant Park Baptist Church), and has shown her paintings in two shows resulting from her affiliation with the Artspace group. In fact, she found the Artspace group through advertisements in the Beaumont Wilshire newsletter.

Gay's primary medium is oil painting, although she initially studied watercolor painting nine years ago with a West Linn neighbor, Angelina Woolley, now too a Northeast neighbor who shows at the Mark Woolley Gallery. At the time, Gay taught special education in elementary school, but has subsequently earned a degree in Art Therapy from Marylhurst University in Lake Oswego. Gay's most recent work focuses on Asian themes inspired by travel to Thailand where her son currently lives.

When looking for a new home, Gay, in particular, was looking for a neighborhood with ready access to urban amenities and fellowship with other artists. She is pleased she has found both.

See samples of Gay's work and that of other Artspace members at www.bwna.org under "Artspace". ■

BW on YouTube

By Helen Koba

In the last issue, I reminded everyone that there are lots of photos from past neighborhood events on the BWNA website at www.bwna.org 'photos'. This time I want to mention another feature of the website: the video section. There has been a lot of media attention given to the influence of sites such as YouTube on the internet on a whole generation of young people. So that BW is not left in the dust, M. Caoile, a BW resident, has created and posted fourteen videos of neighborhood events on YouTube.

These videos can be viewed from the BWNA website www.bwna.org on the 'video' link. Three are my favorite. The first is 'Picnic at Wilshire Park' which shows scenes from last year's National Night Out picnic, where we were serenaded by the Fighting Instruments of Karma Marching Band! I hope seeing this video will inspire you to attend the upcoming picnic this August 5 at Wilshire Park. This video has been viewed by over 150 people.

Fred Elsasser, BW resident since 1925

My next favorite is 'Fred's Story #1'. This is an interview with Fred Elsasser, who has lived in BW since 1925. The best part is when he talks about getting his teeth fixed with braces at the age of 85! This video has had over 500 hits.

And last is 'Tree planting #2 – to work'. Here we see the staff of Friends of Trees showing and helping BW residents plant and take care of new trees. The scenes in this video give me great hope and confirm in my mind that the tree planting torch (and shovel) has passed to the next generation. This video has been viewed over 1370 times!

Watch all 14 videos for yourself and share them with friends and relatives.
